

Benefits of CC3.0

What's in it for me?

Common Core 3.0 will:

- Align with Katie A., California Partners for Permanency (CAPP), Safety Organized Practice (SOP), and the California Child Welfare Core Practice Model (CPM)
- Meets state and federal regulations for new child welfare social worker training
- Standardize curriculum for new child welfare social workers throughout the state
- Focus on skill development rather than information delivery
- Provide new social workers with an opportunity to engage families and practice new skills in the field
- Provide a structure for counties to support new social workers in transferring what they learned in the classroom to the field
- Provide multiple learning modalities, which are supported by adult learning theory and meet the needs of a changing workforce
- Allow easy access of training materials for future use and maximize the trainee's time away from the office
